Synthetic drug bill passes 97-0

Tilley's legislation could render lawsuit against Oak Grove moot

BY NICK TABOR
NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

Since a judge overturned an Oak Grove ordinance banning certain kinds of incense, which many doctors and legislators consider synthetic drugs, The Toy Box has continued selling the products, said the business owner, Luther Anderson.

The store sued the city immediately after the ordinance passed in December, arguing that the city overstepped its legal bounds and that its definition of synthetic drugs was far too broad. Christian Circuit Judge Andrew Self temporarily ruled in the store's favor.

Suspect nameless days after Afghanistan massacre

BY GENE JOHNSON
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

OLYMPIA, Wash. — The U.S. serviceman suspected in the massacre of more than a dozen Afghan civilians is a 38-year-old father of two who served three tours in Iraq and is based in Washington state. Still, days after the slayings, the military has kept under wraps one of the most salient details — his name.

Military officials said it was military policy not to release the name until charges are filed. But

Area land bank's mission awaits economic thawing

27 properties on for-sale list

BY NICK TABOR
NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

The Christian County Land Bank Authority, which acquires vacant and dilapidated properties and converts them to tax-producing status, has taken on more than 30 properties since its inception in December 2007.

In light of the economic recession, it has only sold five properties to developers, leaving 27 on its for-sale list. In the meantime, Hopkinsville has to pay the cost of mowing these properties routinely, which amounts to more than local officials would like, said Steve Bourne, director of Community and Development Services.

However, the agency offers a service that's fundamentally helpful, Bourne said. CDS officials simply face a challenge right now of making the demand for local properties match the supply. This means offering the right financial incentives to entice developers,

NICK TABOR | KENTUCKY NEW ERA
The Christian County Land Bank Authority acquired this property (photo provided, top) from the owner and had the house bulldozed. After clearing the back taxes, the land was sold to a Clarksville, Tenn., developer, who had a new house (above) built and restored the property to tax-producing status.

Bourne said.

CDS has started many new grant programs in the last several years. As they take hold, the land bank could become more and more useful, Bourne said.

The Land Bank Authority board is trying to acquire properties in blocks that it could sell to developers all at once, said Brandon Garnett, the board chairman. This way developers might build multi-lot apartment complexes.

The land bank has four properties on Rozelle Avenue and three on Moores Drive, and most of its other properties are in pairs on the same streets.

The Land Bank Authority consists of representatives from the four major taxing districts in Christian County: Garnett for the county government, Mayor Dan Kemp for Hopkinsville, insurance agent Wynn Radford for the state and Kenneth Anderson for the school district.

Anyone who has an unwanted property can donate it to the land bank. If the owner owes back taxes or has liens from weeds and trash, land bank officials wipe the slate clean. No other agency has this power.

Many people who donate property inherited it from a deceased relative, Garnett said. Banks also donate properties on which they've foreclosed, Bourne said.

When the board accepts a new property, it typically has the lot bulldozed, Garnett said. It advertises the land sale in the New Era. Potential buyers submit bids, including descriptions of what they intend to build and their timelines. With each bid, the board considers the way the new construction would affect the neighborhood.

The board tries to break even on

WHO WE ARE: Ian J. Lydon, 39, Hopkinsville

Ian Lydon builds his own guitars. His favorite creation is an electric guitar made from two pieces of walnut and a center made of maple. It resembles the guitar Rick Derringer plays, he said.

Lydon taught himself how to build guitars and has been playing for 22 years since his birthday Wednesday.

Jazz and rock are his two favorite genres of music. When he says he listens to rock he qualifies that by noting specific bands such as Rush and King Crimson.

He mostly makes guitars for the art of it, but will make custom guitars for anyone willing to pay the cost of materials plus $10 an hour for labor.

At this point, Lydon only builds electrics. However, he plans to start working on a jazz acoustic in the near future.

"I've really reached for the stars on this one," he said. "I'm gonna put my everything into it."

JAMES ROBERT GUESS, JR.

Funeral services for James Robert Guess, Jr. will be held at Goodwin Funeral Home in Cadiz at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday, March 17, 2012, with Bros. Richard Sexton and Danny Guess officiating. Visitation will be on Friday, March 16 from 4:00-8:00 p.m. Music will be provided by the Dunn Family. Pallbearers will be his grandsons and grandson-in-law: Jeffrey and Jason Weaver, Adam Guess and Patrick Kekic, plus four nephews; Steve Guess, James Walter Roberts, David Guess and Jonathan Guess. He will be buried at Mt. Pleasant Missionary Baptist Church Cemetery on Blue Spring Road. Honorary pallbearers will be deacons from Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church and members of the Cadiz Civitan Club.

Mr. Guess, formerly of Cadiz, has been a resident of the Bill Nichols State Veterans Home in Alexander City, Alabama since January 25, 2010 where he died on March 13, 2012 after an extended battle with Alzheimer's Disease. He and his wife moved to Alabama in 2008 to be near their daughter due to failing health. James was born on October 26, 1926 in Paducah, KY to Rev. James Robert Guess, Sr. and Clara Doom Guess. He was preceded in death by his parents, three sisters, Roberta Guess, Velina Guess Cunningham and Sue Guess Morris and his beloved wife of 61 plus years, Naomi Peal Guess.

James joined Mt. Pleasant Missionary Baptist Church in 1940 at age 14 when his father, Bro. J.R. Guess, Sr. was called as the pastor from Dublin, KY. He served the church as member, treasurer, teacher and deacon for 66 years. He graduated from Trigg County High School in 1944, then attended Purdue University for 3 semesters before serving his country with the 508th Paratroopers Division as part of the occupation forces in Germany after WWII. After his tour of duty, he returned to Cadiz and married Naomi Peal on November 14, 1947, beginning a life partnership resulting in two children, four grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren, countless friends and a legacy of respect, love and laughter which will live in the hearts of all who knew him.

James and Naomi were the owners of the Western Auto store on Main Street in downtown Cadiz from 1960 until 1985. Before buying the Western Auto, James worked for 10 years for Lincoln Income Life Insurance and before that, for the Cadiz Ford Motor company.

Like so many of his generation, James was first and foremost a man of character, a living example of the value of hard work, love of country and love of his fellow man. He was a community leader during all of his active years. In addition to serving his church, he was the last remaining charter member of the Cadiz Civitan Club, having served from its beginning in 1955 until moving to Alabama in 2008. He served on the Trigg Co. Board of Education for 12 years in the late 1960's and early 1970's and spent 9 years on the Barkley Lake Water District Board. James called home football games for 41 years for the Trigg Co. Wildcats, was active in the Trigg County Historical Society, and much more. He was well known as a "water witch" who found fresh water wells for numerous people in western Kentucky. He was an avid fisherman and hunter.

James is survived by his daughter, Lana Guess Thompson, of Pelham, AL and his son and daughter-in-law, Stan D. Guess and Connie Adams Guess, of Denton, TX; four grandchildren and their spouses: Jeffrey Weaver and wife Signé of Woodland Hills, CA; Jason Weaver and wife Elise of Pelham, AL; Adam Guess and wife Sara and René Guess Kekic and husband Patrick Kekic all of Waco, TX; eight great-grandchildren: Venice and Vienna Weaver, Nolen and Luke Weaver, Thomas, Emma and Charlotte Guess, and Carter Kekic; one sister, Lavena Guess Roberts, three brothers: Joe, Paul and Danny Guess, as well as numerous nieces, nephews, relatives and friends.

Mr. Guess chose Gideon Bibles as his favorite charity for people who wish to make a memorial donation in lieu of flowers.

Only God can know the future

DEAR REV. GRAHAM: I've always been fascinated with astrology, and have tried to guide my life according to my horoscope, and things like that. But a couple of months ago I became a Christian, and I'm wondering if maybe I shouldn't be doing this. What is your view? — N. McC.

DEAR N. MCC.: The real question isn't what my view or anyone else's view is about this — but what is God's view. And God's Word is very clear:

MY ANSWER

BILLY GRAHAM

He alone is our guide, and we are to look to Him alone for the wisdom we need. Nothing else is to take His rightful place. The Bible teaches that we should have nothing to do with occult practices, including the things you mention. I realize you may not think of them this way — but they are, because they all involve mystical attempts to foretell the future (which the Bible rejects).

Only God knows what is ahead of us, and we are to trust Him alone as we face the future — even when the way is unclear. And we can trust Him, because He loves us and wants what is best for us.

YOUR FIRST CHOICE FOR READY-MIXED CONCRETE

1555 Old Concord Ln., Hopkinsville • 270-886-1411

In Loving Memory of Becky P'Pool Brown
January 7th, 1950 – March 15th, 2004

Our memories still remain strong as time passes us by, as it has been 8 years now since we said our final goodbye.

Thoughts of you are always with us each and every day, wishing you were still here as there is so much I'd love to say.

All the girls have changed and grown so very much, I am sure you are watching over from above.

Always know how deeply you are missed and how very much you are loved.

Johnny, Christy & Family

Woman rethinks choice not to have children

DEAR AMY: My husband and I have never planned on having children.

We are both in our mid-30s, and while we are financially stable and have a strong family network, we didn't think that we wanted to make the sacrifices necessary to become good parents.

Several months ago, I found out I was pregnant but had a miscarriage.

At first I was relieved, thinking that life could return to "normal" for us and it would be the best for everyone.

Now, I occasionally find myself wondering what I might have lost.

Logically, I know that there are many reasons not to have children: the time commitment, the expense, the fact that your life is no longer really yours; not to mention suffering through the pregnancy and labor portion of the process.

Is my reaction just a normal part of the process of losing something, or should we reconsider a decision we thought we had already made? — Wondering

DEAR WONDERING: The tendency to revisit these big life choices is an emotionally healthy reaction to a major life event.

The reasons you cite for not having children are all logical, but your assumption that you can return to "normal" after a miscarriage is not.

All of the logic in the world will never allow for the stuff life throws at you: job loss, illness, and natural and personal disaster.

In short, every single thing that comes down the pike will be a potential threat to your version of "normal."

Do yourself a favor — don't cling too hard to normal.

Definitely reconsider your baby plans. You and your husband should continue to talk about it, as you have done in the past.

If you conclude that your choice is based in a mutual desire to remain childless — and not anxiety — then march forward, secure in your decision, but willing to discuss it again.

DEAR AMY: Due to job loss, my younger sister, "Stacy," and her teen daughter have been living with us for more than a year now.

Stacy has gotten two different jobs over the year, but neither has been long term.

In this economy, job hunting is hard. With our kids out on their own, my husband and I have gone on a yearly vacation together.

Last year this included my sister and niece.

We still want to vacation (with just the two of us) this year, and I'm not sure how Stacy will take it.

Last year was very expensive with two extra fares, lodging and food costs, and we have a more limited budget now due to the daily costs of two extra people in the household.

Stacy is already asking, "Where are we going this year?" when she is unable to contribute for either herself or her daughter.

I feel trapped. What should I do? — Stuck Sister

DEAR STUCK: You have been very generous, and it sounds as if on the whole this arrangement is basically working out. I give you and your husband a lot of credit for being such devoted family members.

When you vacation without including the other members of your household, you are emphasizing that they are not quite full members of the household. Depending on the personal dynamic between you, this will sting.

You and your husband deserve to have some privacy and to go away together if you want to, however.

The only way to find out how your sister will take this news is to tell her.

You say, "We're planning to go away, but we can't afford a vacation for all of us this year. I'm sorry, but maybe when you get on your feet you can join us again."

GOP fight for delegates stretches to Puerto Rico

WASHINGTON (AP) — An upbeat Rick Santorum barreled into Puerto Rico on Wednesday in pursuit of another campaign-bending victory in a Republican presidential race where suddenly no primary is too minor and no delegate is conceded. Mitt Romney put nearly $1 million into television advertising in Illinois, the next big-state showdown.

"If we keep winning races, eventually people are going to figure out that Gov. Romney is not going to be the nominee," said Santorum, eager to build on Tuesday's unexpected victories in Alabama and Mississippi.

Romney in turn dismissed Santorum as a "lightweight" as far as the economy is concerned.

He also rebutted suggestions that he can't appeal to core conservatives. "You don't win a million more votes than anyone else in this race by just appealing to high-income Americans," he said on Fox News.

"Some who are very conservative may not be in my camp, but they will be when I become the nominee, when I face Barack Obama."

Romney travels to Puerto Rico on Friday, after two days in New York fundraising.

But in a reflection of the importance of next week's Illinois primary, aides announced he would make a previously unscheduled campaign stop in the Chicago area en route to San Juan.

Newt Gingrich, despite losing twice in the South, a region he hoped to own in the race, showed no sign of abandoning his fading campaign.

That presumably suited Romney fine. But not so much Santorum, eager for a race in which he is the sole challenger on the right for Romney, the former Massachusetts governor.

The events of the previous 24 hours neatly summarized the most turbulent Republican presidential campaign in a generation.

Santorum's primary victories in Mississippi and Alabama were the product of a wellspring of conservative support that overcame Romney's overwhelming organizational and financial advantages in the race to pick a November opponent for Democrat Obama.

Yet despite his twin defeats in the South, Romney remains the faraway leader in the delegate chase. Incomplete returns showed him actually adding one or two to his advantage because of overnight caucus victories in Hawaii and American Samoa.

That division — headline-grabbing primary victories versus routine accumulation of delegates — emerged as an increasingly significant point of contention as Romney, Santorum and Gingrich selected facts and spun theories designed to put their own hopes in the best light.

Obama: US, UK devoted to mission in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the United States and Britain outlined plans Wednesday to shift the NATO war effort in Afghanistan toward a back-seat advisory role while Afghan forces increasingly take the lead, but stressed that the two nations remain committed to the mission there.

President Barack Obama gave his fullest endorsement yet for the mission shift, but he said the overall plan to gradually withdraw forces and hand over security in Afghanistan will stand.

Obama said he anticipates no "sudden, immediate changes to the plan we already have," for bringing forces home.

The United States and Britain have the largest fighting forces in Afghanistan, where the combat is in its 11th year. The U.S., Britain and other NATO nations have already agreed to keep forces in the country through 2014, when Afghan President Hamid Karzai will leave office.

"At the upcoming NATO summit in my hometown of Chicago, we'll determine the next phase of transition," Obama said following a private meeting at the White House with visiting British Prime Minister David Cameron. "This includes shifting to a support role next year in 2013 in advance of Afghans taking full responsibility for security in 2014. We're going to complete this mission and we're going to do it responsibly."

Obama acknowledged the drop in public support at home for the war. "People get weary," after long wars, the president said, but he also said he thinks most people in both the U.S. and Britain understand the reasons for continuing the fight.

Cameron, who joined Obama for a joint Rose Garden news conference, said security is better in Afghanistan and he praised the U.S. strategy to add more than 30,000 forces in a "surge" against the Taliban-led militants in 2009.

Senate panel backs redistricting rules change

BY RANDY PATRICK
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT, Ky. — A Senate committee has unanimously approved a bill that calls for a constitutional amendment to allow lawmakers to divide more counties into redistricting.

The bill by Senate Majority Leader Robert Stivers, R-Manchester, would apply to redistricting following the 2020 census if it passes the legislature and voters approve it at the polls. The Senate State and Local Government Committee on Wednesday passed the measure by a 9-0 vote.

Limits on the number of counties permitted to be divided complicated redistricting this year. In February, the Kentucky Supreme Court ruled that legislative candidates would have to run in their old districts in November because newly redrawn districts were unconstitutional.

Redistricting occurs every 10 years to account for population changes. Between 2000 and 2010, Kentucky's population grew from 4 million to 4.3 million, requiring new legislative and congressional district boundaries.

Federal law requires that districts be nearly equal in population, with a variation of no more than 5 percent. But legislators say it's hard to comply with that requirement and a state constitution provision that redistricting divide as few counties as possible.

"We cannot, at this point in time, abide by or conform to Section 233 (of the Kentucky Constitution)," Stivers said.

Stivers' bill would allow legislators to divide any county when "reasonably necessary" to achieve the equality requirement, provided that a county first be given as many districts that are entirely contained within the county as it has the population to handle before adding parts of contiguous counties. The number of divisions within any county must be kept to a minimum.

He gave as an example Jefferson County, which has a population of about 700,000. Because Senate districts consist of about 114,000 people, he said, the county would have to have at least six wholly contained Senate districts before parts of any other counties could be added to make a district. In a less densely populated county such as Laurel County, legislators "could not cut it up five ways," he said.

Stivers noted that a legislative map proposed by Senate Minority Leader R.J. Palmer, D-Winchester this year would have divided Ohio County. "Under this scenario, that plan would have been constitutional," he said.

Stivers' bill also would require legislators to remain in session without pay if they don't finish redistricting by April 15, when the session ends, according to the state constitution.

Sen. Gerald Neal, D-Louisville, voted for the measure, but said a more comprehensive approach is needed.

"The problem I have with your legislation is that it doesn't go far enough," he said. "It seems to me that what we really need is to take politics out of the redistricting process or at least not be guided by that."

Neal suggested the creation of a non-partisan committee that would draft a legislative redistricting plan without regard to political considerations and recommend it to the General Assembly. He said he has proposed legislation that he would like Stivers to incorporate into his bill "at some point."

Also during Wednesday's committee meeting, members voted 6-2 in favor of a proposal that would give the legislature the authority to review and either approve or disapprove administrative regulations.

Neal spoke against that measure, describing it as an infringement on the doctrine of the separation of powers. But Sen. Damon Thayer, R-Georgetown, said it was needed to ensure that the executive branch follow the intent of the legislature, which makes the laws.

HAPPY DAYS

DENNIS O'NEIL | KENTUCKY NEW ERA

Luke Settle (center), playing The Fonz, arrives onstage Wednesday during a dress rehearsal of Heritage Christian Academy's production of "Happy Days" at the Alhambra Theatre. The school will present the show Friday and Saturday.

HCA to perform 'Happy Days' at Alhambra

BY DENNIS O'NEIL
NEW ERA FEATURE WRITER

Suggesting "Happy Days" as a possible production to her students, Heritage Christian Academy Guidance Counselor Lee Embry was met with a collection of blank stares.

"A lot of them didn't even know what (the show) was," Embry said. "We watched episodes we bought on DVD."

After familiarizing them with the characters, Embry said the students took to the show well. They started work on a musical version of the show, based on the Garry Marshall play "Happy Days: A New Musical" in October. They will present it this Friday and Saturday night at the Alhambra Theatre.

The Marshall show is set in 1959 and follows the "Happy Days" characters as they try to save Arnold's Drive-In from demolition by hosting a dance contest and wrestling match. Embry said they staged a production of "Grease" a few years ago and the students were attracted to doing another show set in the '50s.

"Their favorite line (in 'Happy Days') is, 'Gas prices have skyrocketed to 12 cents,'" Embry said with a laugh. "They keep laughing about that."

There are 35 kids in the show, all of them from HCA's ninth- through 12th-grade classes. Embry said the show has come together well.

"A lot of (the students) are involved in a lot of extracurricular activities besides this, so they are really juggling a lot," she said.

Performances will be at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Tickets are $7 and can be purchased at the Alhambra box office or at HCA this week.

3 AC Automotive suspects plead not guilty to charges

BY BENJAMIN JOUBERT
NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

Three of the four men accused of robbing an automotive dealership in January pleaded not guilty on Wednesday morning in Christian Circuit Court.

Henry J. Brown, 24, and Christopher J. Walker, 26, both of Clarksville, Tenn., remained at the Christian County Jail during the hearing, but were visible and audible to Judge John Atkins over a courtroom computer via video streaming.

Public defender Brandi McEldowney told Atkins that Brown was considering hiring a private attorney and that the defense office was unable to represent Walker. When an office represents more than one client in the same case, that creates a conflict of interest since attorneys may differ on how to try the case, McEldowney said.

Fake checks reported to the sheriff's department

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Three incidents of check fraud were reported to the Christian County Sheriff's Department on Tuesday.

Bridgette I. Kenozierski, of Oak Grove, received a check in the mail for $2,250, deputies said. She deposited the check into her bank account and the funds were made available, according to the report.

Kenozierski then took $1,950 out of her account and wired it to a Maria L. Capaldo. Soon after, the bank told Kenozierski that the deposited check was fake. She then

Child death review panel bill clears House

BY RANDY PATRICK
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKFORT, Ky. — A measure to create an external panel to review child abuse cases involving fatalities or serious injuries that almost result in fatalities was approved Tuesday by the Kentucky House of Representatives.

The bill sponsored by Democratic Rep. Susan Westrom of Lexington passed the chamber by a vote of 96-0.

The 13-member state panel of experts would review how child abuse cases were handled by the Cabinet for Health and Family Services.

SKIT to perform 'Our Town' in Trigg County

BY DENNIS O'NEIL
NEW ERA FEATURE WRITER

CADIZ, Ky. — Southern Kentucky Independent Theatre's production of "Our Town" has had its share of hitches in the road.

Two weeks ago, a cast member suffered a concussion in a car accident and a replacement had to be named. Earlier this week, Denny Lacy, the play's lead, started developing bronchitis and had to see a doctor.

Portia Ezell, the play's director, expects Lacy will feel better by today's opening performance. The production had its first dress rehearsal Monday night with set designer Paul Fourshee reading Lacy's lines from the audience.

Despite the difficulties, Ezell is optimistic the play will go off well.

DENNIS O'NEIL | KENTUCKY NEW ERA

J.B. Hendricks (left) and Bryan Blaylock rehearse a scene from the play, which explores the everyday life of an American town in the early 1900s.

"It's just a good thing everything fell into place ahead of schedule," Ezell said, adding that they have been working on the production since late January. "We've been lucky. All these years we've been doing shows, this is the first time we've had a series of unfortunate events like this."

The show is the first SKIT has done in the newly renovated Trigg County Little Theatre, which had its seats and carpeting replaced this past summer. It is also the culmination of a theater workshop program offered the past four months and funded through a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Workshops were offered in set design, makeup and costuming, directing and auditioning. Ezell, who taught the workshop on auditioning, said many of the production's members participated in the program and said it benefited them greatly.

tried to cancel the transaction, but the money had already been received by Capaldo. The wired money put her account into the negative, Kenozierski told deputies.

In another report, Alma G. Brown, of Greenville Road, said her 40-year-old son received a check in the mail for $4,500 with instructions to go to a casino and send the money back to the sender, according to the report. The son took the check to the bank where it was declared fake. Around 11:30 a.m. Monday, Brown received a call from a private number. The man on the other line said she and her son were going to die today and abruptly hung up, Brown told deputies.

The call came from a landline in Kingston, Jamaica, deputies discovered. A suspect is not listed in the report. The charge listed is third-degree terroristic threatening.

Another similar incident was reported on Monkey Norman Road.

Dee Fields told deputies that she received a fake cashier's check via express mail for $2,850. Fields sent the check to the sheriff's department, where she was advised to forward any calls relating to the check to deputies.

Briefcase, cash, tailgate reported stolen

A Green Hill Spur Road man's vehicle was broken into and a briefcase stolen between Sunday night and Monday morning, according to a Christian County Sheriff's Department report.

Roderick S. Brown said someone smashed the rear side window of his Honda and stole an aluminum briefcase, according to the report. He told deputies there was nothing of value in the briefcase and that he didn't hear or see anything strange the night prior.

A suspect is not listed in the report.

In a theft report, $1,100 in cash was reported stolen by a Crofton man, according to a sheriff's report.

Troy W. Clark was working on his mother's car in her driveway on Anderson Street when his wallet fell out of his back pocket, deputies said. He then asked another man if he had seen his wallet. The man said he hadn't, but emptied his trash can where the wallet was found, minus the cash, Clark said.

A friend was with Clark at the time, but didn't have the cash, according to the report. Suspects are listed in the report.

In another theft report, the rear tailgate to a Ford F150 was stolen between Monday evening and Tuesday morning, according to a Hopkinsville police report.

An employee of North Side Auto Parts, on Main Street, told police that during the night someone removed the tailgate from the truck while it was parked in front of the business.

The tailgate is valued at $800. A suspect is not listed in the report.

Shots reportedly fired at Hopkinsville man

A 21-year-old Hopkinsville man told police that someone fired several shots from a handgun at him Monday evening.

Demario M. Braxton said an acquaintance fired the shots at him, according to a Hopkinsville police report.

While Braxton was running away, the shooter allegedly picked up items Braxton dropped and fled, according to the report.

The charges listed are first-degree wanton endangerment and first-degree robbery.

clients the defense office would represent.

Atkins told Walker over video that another public defender outside of Christian County would be assigned to him.

Joseph M. Brown, of Pine Hill Drive, also pleaded not guilty and is currently being represented by Attorney Rick Boling, McElDowney said.

The fourth man, Justin L. Horstead, 23, also of Clarksville, Tenn., was arrested Tuesday after allegedly holding a 54-year-old man at gunpoint. He was indicted by a grand jury Friday, along with Henry Brown, on charges of two counts of first-degree robbery, first-degree wanton endangerment, first-degree evading police and first-degree attempted assault of a police officer.

Joseph Brown is charged with first-degree robbery, first-degree wanton endangerment and first-degree fleeing police. Brown was identified as the getaway driver by an employee at the auto dealership, police said.

Walker is charged with one count of first-degree robbery, first-degree wanton endangerment, first-degree evading police and first-degree attempted assault of a police officer.

A pretrial conference is set for Henry Brown, Joseph Brown and Walker at 8:30 a.m. April 25.

PANEL: Child death review panel passes Ky. House

"They will come up with their conclusions of what happened, how the death could have been avoided, what protocols did not take place, what protocols need to be put in policy for various staff for inter-agencies. It's really a fact-finding so that we can improve the outcomes or prevent deaths or near deaths," Westrom said.

A child fatality review team would be created to refer information to the panel.

Membership of the panel would include members with specific professional backgrounds, including a pediatrician, a family court judge, a court-appointed special advocate, a prosecutor and a coroner, and others.

The bill also would create an Independent

Office of Investigation for Child Protective Services that would investigate and make recommendations for improvements.

Both the panel and the office would have the power to subpoena records.

The bill would expand the list of household members about which reports of abuse or neglect are initially reported to the cabinet without immediately notifying law enforcement. That was an issue in the highly publicized case of Amy Dye, a 9-year-old Todd County girl who was beaten to death by her adopted brother in February 2011.

The girl was not counted among the 18 child abuse deaths that year because she was not killed by a custodial parent, the cabinet explained.

SKIT: Theatre group to perform 'Our Town'

"The people who took the set design and painting workshop used all the techniques that they taught in constructing this set," she said.

This is the first time SKIT has performed "Our Town," a drama focusing on the everyday life of an American town in the early 20th century. While some cast members have worked with SKIT before, Ezell said they have many new faces for this production.

"We were just really lucky," she said. "We've got some really good folks."

Shows will be at 7 p.m. today, Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $3 and can be purchased at the Janice Mason Art Museum in Cadiz or at the theater.

Trigg County Little Theatre is inside Trigg County High School, 203 Main St.

County's economic foundation is farming

Mark Luttrull, who was honored this week as the 2012 Christian County Farmer of the Year, makes his living on corn, cattle, wheat, soybeans and dark tobacco.

His farm operation based in the Barker's Mill community is typical for this county — with one exception. Luttrull planted a field of sweet potatoes last year that produced about 25,000 pounds per acre. Although that two-acre experimental crop had little to do with his financial standing, it says a lot about the entrepreneurial spirit of farmers.

"I am looking for something to compete with tobacco," Luttrull, 32, said. A lifelong farmer, Luttrull says sweet potatoes are pretty easy to grow and require little labor in between the May planting and the September harvest. Sweet potatoes have a long shelf life, about 13 months, so a grower could time the sale for the highest market price.

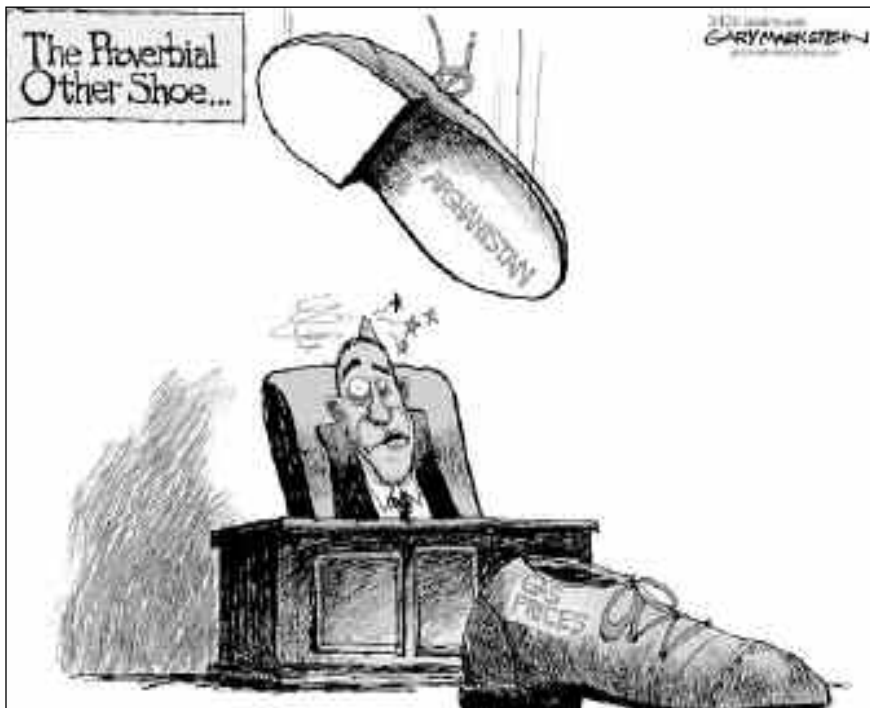

The one significant wrinkle in sweet potato production is the need for a large building to cure the potatoes and to control humidity and temperature. That's the part Luttrull is still considering. He hasn't determined how to make it work on a large scale that could replace his tobacco crop. But he also hasn't abandoned the idea. This spring, he's going to plant another small field of sweet potatoes.

That's the entrepreneurial spirit we have to appreciate. Farmers juggle a great deal of risk and money to keep their businesses afloat.

At the annual Salute to Agriculture, the Chamber of Commerce highlighted the county's standing in Kentucky. Christian County is the No. 1 producer of winter wheat and ranks second among the state's 120 counties in corn production. The county is seventh in soybean production. In 2011, Christian County had $110 million in crop receipts and $29 million in livestock receipts. There are approximately 1,200 farms in the county covering 346,000 acres.

Farming is an integral part of this county's economy, and we shouldn't ever overlook the impact on our community. Farmers like Mark Luttrull, who assume the risks of agriculture and look for new markets, are among our best entrepreneurs.

Kentucky New Era editorials are the consensus opinion of the editorial board, which meets every week and includes Publisher Taylor W. Hayes, Opinion Editor Jennifer P. Brown and Editor Eli Pace.

COLUMNIST

Future of tobacco culture, et al

I suppose that tobacco is one of the greatest killers of all time, but it was the economic center of my life as a young person. Whether we got new clothes and had Christmas gifts depended almost solely on the price of tobacco. Just about every adult that I knew either chewed, smoked, or dipped snuff and a few did all three.

Now legal restraints on the use of tobacco grow steadily and the domestic use of tobacco must surely be down, but I understand that Asian and other foreign markets are up and tobacco continues to be a profitable crop, proving something that is totally beyond me.

You can easily find claims on the net that tobacco is the single greatest killer of mankind. We have generally honored a principle which asserts that man is free to do himself harm but not free to do harm to others. (Unusually religious people do not even permit you to harm yourself, thus taking much of the joy out of living for masochists.) Secondhand smoke is deemed to harm others, and under that assumption, we have made smoking illegal in many public places. I do not smoke and I have never smoked cigarettes so I am just nattering about the difficulties of governing ourselves with a little interest in what is right and what is wrong — and what don't make no never mind.

In the last days of my life, I am becoming uncertain about almost everything. Every day of my life, I seem to encounter some new restriction on my freedom, sometimes sensible and sometimes totally outrageous. Life has many dimensions and length is only one of them.

To cope with new problems and new technology, we have to pass a new law now and then but I think I have a capital idea that might rescue us from total control of our lives by laws, regulations and people determined to rescue us from ourselves.

If we had to repeal one law or regulation every time we passed a new one, we could at least hold our own with the freedom we have left at this time. Also, the thought occurs to me that we have to put some killing forces back in action or we are pretty soon going to run out of standing room on this planet. Think, too, of a population mostly in their late 90s, all feeble and all demented and requiring help. We may just run out of enough young people to provide all the help that will be needed.

I grudgingly admit that the tobacco restraint laws are probably a good thing but we are seeing way too much of good things these days for my taste.

Dear readers, I am finding a lot of joy in curmudgeonly thought these days, but do not take me too seriously. I have a cheerful thought every once in a while, sometimes as often as every 30 days. I am about due for another one, and I will share it with you when it comes around.

Please be patient.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

“What I’m thinking about more and more these days is simply the importance of transparency, and Jefferson’s saying that he’d rather have a free press without a government than a government without a free press.”

Kiss my grits, Mr. Romney

Having lived in South Carolina for most of the past 25 years, I've often averred that the state Chamber of Commerce keeps a stable of "rednecks" to release when the national media come to town.

You know the ones — the folks who drive trucks, hunt deer (and even varmints if they're in the mood for a little chicken fried squirrel) and, yes, put cheese in their grits. The latter is hardly a redneck pursuit these days. Grits have become the side dish du jour in swanky restaurants.

Mainly, the locals captured on camera are often unsophisticated, probably undereducated, and unaccustomed to editing their thoughts for public consumption. The accent common to many folks in the region — or as outsiders prefer, "them thar parts" — long ago has been identified by the motion picture industry as belonging to less-intelligent humans. Rare exceptions — the brilliant country lawyer who merely pretends to be dumber'n a box of rocks — prove the rule.

Thus, when members of the national media come to town every four years, they're on the lookout for the stereotype they've memorized from afar. And, in a quirky gesture of reverse public relations, the Chamber obliges. Or so I've always figured, given that I know few people who actually talk that way. It isn't inconceivable that these characters play up their role just a bit for the cameras. What else would one expect, anyway, when the candidates themselves fall into a weird sort of "Southern Tourette's," delivering inanities apparently gleaned from the visitor's guide to "redneck" tropes?

"Mornin', y'all," said Mitt Romney recently to a Mississippi crowd. He started his day off right, he said, with "a biscuit and some cheesy grits." That would be cheesy grits, but never mind. Would Romney greet an audience at a Jewish Community Center with: "Oy vey, did I ever enjoy my loxies and bagels this morning!"? Or African-Americans with: "Yo, dawg, wassup?"

Actually, yes, he might. Forever tattooed in the memory is the image of Romney approaching an African-American baby at a 2008 Martin Luther King Jr. Day parade. Pointing to the baby's necklace, he said: "What's happening? You got some bling-bling here!"

Yo. Which means "I" in Spanish, so why not go there, too? "Buenos dias, amigos. Love me some tacos and salsies."

Romney isn't the only guilty party, just the most recent. Even Barack Obama loses his last syllable south of the Mason-Dixon. For Romney, however, the more he tries to get down with the people, the more he highlights the perception that he can't. Why try? Why not to say this?

Southerners, some of whom have actually ventured beyond their state's borders, understand that biscuits and grits are local fare and that northern politicians probably haven't enjoyed much of that. They understand that a city boy probably hasn't had much experience in deer stands and duck blinds. They get that you have a different elocution, so why try to imitate theirs? Would Romney speak English with a Latino accent to win over a crowd in Little Havana?

No, because that would be racist — or something. Which raises the question: Why is it perfectly acceptable to mock white Southerners? If it's because you think they're ignorant, then when did it become OK to mock the less lucky? Or to ask only residents of the Deep South questions you don't ask people in other regions?

Bias isn't only found in answers, but in questions, as illustrated by a recent poll by the Democratic-affiliated Public Policy Polling group out of North Carolina. People in Alabama and Mississippi were asked about evolution, interracial marriage, and whether President Obama is a Muslim. More than half of Mississippians apparently believe Obama is a Muslim, and 45 percent of Alabamans do.

These headline-producing findings are interesting and a little disturbing, but are they unique to the South? As Michelle Cotle points out at The Daily Beast, PPP didn't ask these questions in other states.

The U.S. region that was invaded and conquered doesn't have much use for condescending outsiders, but most have warm hearts and will laugh at your corny jokes. And they'll take your poll, though they may or may not answer honestly, depending on whether they've had their biscuits and cheesy grits that day.

Which is to say: There are lots of ways to be smart and lots of ways to be dumb, and it would appear that the South does not have a monopoly on the latter category.

‘Saturday Scholars’ popular in first year

BY DAVID SNOW
FOR THE NEW ERA

Saturday Scholars was enjoyed greatly by those taking part in the first-year program, encouraging administrators to bring it back next year.

The program runs over three weekends and is offered for Christian County students in grades first through eighth. It was offered at Hopkinsville Community College on Feb. 25 and March 3 and 10, and consisted of classes in a wide range of subjects, including Spanish, math, computer-aided design and the Civil War. About 170 students took part in the enrichment program, and it was apparent that they had a good time.

“Everybody — 100 percent — would recommend it to others and would attend again,” said Leann Pickerill, the enrichment specialist for Christian County elementary school students. “We asked every parent to complete an evaluation at the end of the program to gauge how successful we were at doing that, and 90 percent felt that the program was very challenging.”

Pickerill said those who did not feel the program was very challenging had students who were not able to get into their first choice of classes. She added that 92 percent of the parents rated the program very good or excellent.

The program was designed to present challenging courses to meet the needs of high-achieving or gifted students. There were also meetings with parents during two of the three weeks in which an average of 25 parents attended. Pickerill said that many of the parents who attended those sessions were from Fort Campbell and south Christian County.

“A couple of parents came up to me and said, ‘I’m not from this area. Thank you so much for having these opportunities for my child,’” she said. “For those parents that could not attend, we put all of our PowerPoints up on our website.”

That information can be found at www.christian.kyschools.us.

Pickerill and Tracey Leath, the enrichment specialist for Christian County middle and high school students, taught the first of the parent sessions, providing information about how the program for gifted and talented students works in Christian County Public Schools. They also taught the parents how to read test reports and how to understand the assessment process.

A number of organizations spoke to the parents about their upcoming summer programs, including Camp Curry, the Pennyroyal Area Museum, Jeffers Bend, the Hopkinsville-Christian County Public Library, the YMCA and others.

“We had a very wide variety (of summer programs represented),” Pickerill said. “One mom said, ‘I can send my child somewhere every week of the summer!’ Truly, there are things to do each of the weeks of the summer locally that a lot of parents don’t realize are available.”

Pickerill said that the attendance and positive feedback from the Saturday Scholars program encouraged the school system to continue it next year.

“We had a really big demand for classes for younger students, so we would like to expand those opportunities,” she said. “I feel like, in the future, we will try to have a heavier load of courses for younger students. They seemed really excited. We will continue to offer the parent activities.”

Tigers turned over

Miscues cost HHS in loss

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Hopkinsville High School's bid to bring a second straight PNC/KHSAA Boys' Sweet 16 Basketball Tournament championship to the city disappeared in an array of turnovers Wednesday afternoon at Rupp Arena.

Southwestern took advantage of 25 Hoptown turnovers and the Tigers shot only 28.3 percent from the field as the Warriors claimed a 52-41 victory in the second game of the first session.

"We just never got into that rhythm," Hoptown coach Tim Haworth said. "They went to the box-and-one (defense) and when a team plays a junk

Defeat will give Hoptown motivation

BY KEITH JENKINS
NEW ERA ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Hopkinsville basketball coach Tim Haworth told his players before the start of the season that he wanted to win five trophies.

The Tigers won four: After claiming the Paducah Tilghman Christmas Classic, the Murray Bank Laker Classic, the District 8 tournament and the Region 2 tournament titles, Hopkinsville fell short of adding a state championship trophy to its mantel, losing to Region 12 champion Southwestern 52-41 in the first round of the PNC/KHSAA Boys' Sweet 16 State Basketball Tournament Wednesday at Rupp Arena.

It was the first time the Tigers lost a first-round game in the state tournament in program history.

But that's OK, because Haworth is optimistic his club will be back. "Obviously we have a young team, starting a freshman (Jaqualis Matlock) and a sophomore (Trey Edwards), and having five sophomores coming off the bench," Haworth said. "It is what it is. Hopefully we can take this and learn from it. I told our team that I expect to be back here next year. I expect to compete for a state championship."

Racers, Rams see similar styles

BY COLIN FLY
AP SPORTS WRITER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Donte Poole was half of a credit from being a Colorado State Ram instead of part of Murray State's dynamic backcourt.

He spent a summer in Fort Collins and loved the promise Rams coach Tim Miles gave of allowing him to take any shot he wanted. But when Poole got his grades, he says he ended up half a credit in math short of qualifying.

Now he's part two of the one-two punch of the Racers' backcourt along with Isaiah Canaan and part of a team that's been called the mid-major darling this year.

After coming up short academically Poole, who grew up in Las Vegas decided to take the prep school route in suburban Atlanta near family and reopened his recruitment.

Had he qualified at Colorado State, Poole said, "Oh yeah, I'd still be there."

The Rams' loss has been the Racers' gain.

Poole will start for sixth-seeded Murray State (30-1) against Colorado State (20-11) on today in the West region.

None of the current 11th-seeded Rams know

Poole well because of their youth, but they recognize on tape how dangerous the shooting guard who is averaging 14.2 points is.

"When I heard his name I thought for a second, 'Wait a second, I've heard that name before,'" Rams guard Jesse Carr said. "Pretty crazy. And watching film, it'd be nice to have him here, honestly. 'We're looking forward to going at him.'"

The Rams are making their first trip to the NCAA tournament since 2003 and haven't advanced past their opening game in 22 years. They've flown across the country and will be at a decided disadvantage playing a Bluegrass team in its home state — even if most of the fans will be clad in Kentucky's royal blue instead of Murray State's navy shade.

"We've kind of been looked at as kind of an underdog all year long," said guard Wes Eikmeier, who leads the Rams with 15.6 points per game. "I know that the gym's probably not going to be in our favor Thursday."

The spotlight will primarily be on Canaan, who comes in averaging 19.2 points per game and had to grow up quickly following his own NCAA tournament nightmare two years ago as a freshman. After the Racers hit the first buzzer-beating shot of the 2010 tournament to beat Vanderbilt, Canaan lost the ball in the closing seconds of their next game against Butler, and Murray State lost by two points. The Bulldogs went on to the first of their two consecutive national runner-up finishes.

"He was obviously crushed," first-year Murray State coach Steve Prohm said. "All the guys were crushed. You're so close."

Canaan said it was a learning experience and motivation he needed.

"Things like that you can either go down or go up. I wanted to learn from it and build on it," Canaan said. "I watched it enough to know it from back to front. Like I said it was a learning experience for me."

It's been a learning experience for Miles, too, in program building after taking over the Rams in 2007.

Kentucky head coach John Calipari thanks fans for attending the Wildcats' practice Wednesday in Louisville.

Top-seeded UK to face Western

BY COLIN FLY
AP SPORTS WRITER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Open practices at this NCAA site came and went with the familiar squeaks of sneakers audible until it was Kentucky's turn to take the floor. In an instant, a palpable buzz engulfed the building.

This is Kentucky's show; Western Kentucky is the opening act.

Big Blue faithful are expected out in full force when the Wildcats (32-2) begin their quest for an eighth national title against the Hilltoppers (16-18) today just 75 miles away from home.

"What game? Is there a game?" Kentucky coach John Calipari joked Wednesday after he and his players answered 15 questions ranging from the coach's name surfacing in NBA circles to the fashion statement the 'Cats were making with snapback hats.

It's easy to forget the Hilltoppers.

They struggled so much this season that when they held a promotion for $1 tickets only about 2,000 fans showed up. Nearly four times as many Wildcats' fans watched Kentucky practice Wednesday at the KFC Yum! Center.

"It's going to be a crazy environment," Western Kentucky guard Jamal Crook said. "They pack their fans in the arena everywhere they go. So you know it's going to be crazy."

Western Kentucky was a longshot to even be here and is a 25-point underdog. But the Hilltoppers have won seven straight games, coming from behind each time, culminating with Tuesday's record rally.

With President Barack Obama in attendance, Western Kentucky overcame an NCAA-record 16-point deficit with less than 5 minutes to go in a 59-58 victory over Mississippi Valley State to become the sixth team to win a game in the tournament with a losing record.

Cards riding high into NCAA tourney

BY ANNE M. PETERSON
AP SPORTS WRITER

PORTLAND, Ore. — Louisville has taken a crooked path to the NCAA tournament. Once ranked as high as No. 4, the injury-addled Cardinals fell out of the rankings by losing five games in a stretch of seven. Then they limped into the Big East tournament with losses in three of their final games.

But the Cardinals tore through the Big East tournament, beating Seton Hall, Marquette, Notre Dame and, finally, Cincinnati in the conference championship game.

Now healthy and on a roll, the fourth-seeded Cardinals (26-9) face Davidson (25-7) this morning to open their NCAA tournament run. "I think this has been a confident ball club when everybody's healthy," coach Rick Pitino said. "I think they lack confidence when they've been injured."

The setbacks, which occurred mostly early in the season, included three major knee injuries, a broken nose, a back injury and a concussion that slowed junior point guard Peyton Siva at the start of the season. Senior Kyle Kuric, who leads Louisville with 13.1 points per game, was sidelined in January with a sprained left ankle.

The Cardinals are making their sixth straight appearance in the tournament. They've gone to the regional finals twice in the last four seasons.

Titans wrap up meeting with Manning

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A group of Tennessee Titans executives have returned to Nashville with Peyton Manning for a meeting with the free agent on the team's home turf.

Coach Mike Munchak, general manager Ruston Webster and chief operating officer Mike Reinfeldt landed Wednesday afternoon at Nashville International — not John C. Tune airport as indicated on a flight plan — after flying into Raleigh-Durham Airport to pick up Manning.

They returned to the team's headquarters where the Titans made their pitch to Manning.

Titans owner Bud Adams told WSMV-TV on Tuesday the executives were going to spend the day with Manning and about 6 1/2 hours after he arrived, Manning had not been seen leaving the Titans' facility. At 8:45 p.m., there were approximately 40 fans still gathered along the fence surrounding the facility hoping to get a glimpse of Manning.

Several team officials apparently met with Manning throughout the day, including Tennessee's team doctor, Burton Elrod. He spent 90 minutes at the team's headquarters during Manning's visit.

Munchak, Webster and Reinfeldt had arrived in North Carolina just before 12:30 p.m. Manning arrived at the airport riding in the backseat of black Escalade at 12:53 p.m., boarded the plane and the group headed back to Tennessee.

Manning had been in Raleigh-Durham working out several times at Duke recently. Blue Devils coach David Cutcliffe was his offensive coordinator at the University of Tennessee.

The owner has said he will do whatever it takes to sign Manning in his chase for a championship. He sees the quarterback as the missing piece. The 89-year-old Adams is staying in Houston, and that's why Reinfeldt joined Webster and Munchak for this trip.

Adams promoted Reinfeldt from general manager in January to senior executive vice president and COO to act as his point man with the team in Tennessee.

The Titans already have veteran Matt Hasselbeck with two years left on a deal signed last July, and drafted Jake Locker with the eighth pick overall in the 2011 draft.

The quarterback's suitors include Denver, Arizona and Miami.

Hopkinsville High School students react in the final seconds of their basketball team's loss to Southwestern in the first round of the PNC/KHSAA Boys' State Basketball Tournament Wednesday in Lexington.

HHS: Turnovers cost Hoptown in 1st-round defeat to Warriors defense you really have to move that ball from one side of the court to another. For some reason, I thought we stayed on one side of the court. We would pass it and pass it right back. I don't know if they were just in a hurry to get rid of it but we just weren't good offensively tonight."

Despite committing six turnovers on their first 12 possessions, the Tigers led 7-6 after one quarter.

Junior guard Jordan Majors hit a pair of 3-pointers during an 11-2 run for the Tigers that pushed their lead to 17-8 with 5:40 to go in the first half.

Sensing his team was about to be ushered out of Rupp on an orange and black wave, Southwestern coach Steve Wright called a timeout to try and slow down Hoptown.

"We had played a little tentatively and left Majors a couple of times so we took a timeout and addressed that," Wright said. "We really showed some maturity when we stepped back out on the floor. We really went out and played well defensively."

"They were really on the verge of getting away from us," he added. "The flow of the game felt like they were getting ready to get us and the kids responded well. Our kids did a great job."

Southwestern (28-8) didn't allow Hopkinsville (32-3) another field goal until the 6:03 mark of the third quarter. The Warriors turned a 17-8 deficit into a 22-17 lead with a 14-0 spurt over the two quarters.

"We just weren't good offensively," Haworth said. "I felt really good at half because we were averaging 72-73 points and I felt we were going to pick it up in the second half, but we just never got into that rhythm."

The Tigers committed six straight turnovers during a stretch of the third and saw the deficit balloon to 30-19 with 3:31 to play in the period.

"Even up 17-10 I didn't have a good feel for how we were playing," Haworth said. "I thought we were hurrying. What we had worked on as far as pressure, which hadn't bothered us all year, didn't really bother us today. We just weren't going strong to the basket. Everything was a shy away. In the state tournament you can't do that."

Justin Edwards' free throws with 1:45 to go in the third gave the Warriors their largest lead at 34-20 before Hoptown reserve guard Demarius Henry nailed the first of his three 3-pointers in the game.

Behind Henry and Majors, the Tigers were able to narrow the gap to 41-35 with 3:14 to go. But they couldn't get any closer.

Reserve forward Justin Epperson, who led Southwestern with 18 points on 6 of 7 shooting and 6 of 6 from the free throw line, hit three of four free throws down the stretch to seal the win.

"I thought we did a great job on their big scorers, but Epperson killed us," Haworth said. "He was big for them."

Hoptown also were hampered by an ankle injury to second-leading scorer Jaqualis Matlock, who said he was hurt in the opening 2:00 of the game.

Majors led Hoptown with 18 points and Henry added 10. Edwards had 10 points and 12 rebounds and David Kapinga added 10 points for the Warriors.

Southwestern will face defending state runner-up Rowan County Friday morning in the quarterfinals. The Vikings, who fell to Christian County in double overtime of last year's championship game, defeated North Laurel 64-46 Wednesday.

TIGERS: Defeat should motivate youthful Hoptown worth can't help but to look to the future, beginning with next season.

In 2010-11, Haworth's first year as head coach, the Tigers finished 16-7, were swept by 2011 state champion Christian County and lost in the first round of the district tournament. This season, Haworth led Hopkinsville to a 32-3 record, a sweep of both its district and region opponents and its first Sweet 16 appearance since 2003.

Outside of senior center Laurence Smith and key senior reserves Kenyon Wheeler, C.J. Childress, Darius White and Tavarus Davis, the Tigers will return their entire roster next season, including four starters.

Junior guard T.J. Elam, Edwards, Matlock and Jordan Majors, who led Hopkinsville with 18 points Wednesday, will anchor a team that is hoping to use this year as fuel toward building a stronger state tournament run next season, which will include a tougher slate.

"Next year, we're going to be in the King of the Bluegrass, we're going to Florida, so we're going to be in some big time tournaments," Haworth said. "I'm not going to back down from anybody. We're going to do what we do and we're going to fight."

Majors was speechless following the loss, still stunned that the Tigers committed 25 turnovers, shot just 28 percent from the field and were held to a season-low 41 points. But Haworth spoke for the junior leader, saying he and the rest of the group will waste little time getting back in the gym and working toward making a return trip to Rupp Arena.

"I think Jordan's one of the best juniors in the state," Haworth said of the All-Region performer. "I think Jaqualis is one of the best freshmen in the state. So you've got to be motivated in the offseason to really hit that weight room and get better."

"I'll give them a couple weeks off, and then we'll start working. This should definitely motivate our whole team. It better motivate them or they won't see the court. They know that. I know they'll be motivated. We'll be back here. I fully expect to be back here."

Colonels open tennis season

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

The Christian County High School boys' tennis team won its season opener Tuesday by defeating Fort Campbell 6-3.

Mathew Stutzman, Daquarius Mahone, James Scott and Raheem Milner took home singles victories for the Colonels.

In doubles, Dylan Phipps and Stutzman and Chad Bowling and Wyatt Phipps earned wins.

"We had many new faces to the game of tennis, but they played like professionals and won as a team," first-year Christian County coach David Chase said. "I'm very proud of all of them."

CAR'S STALLING COULD BE DUE TO A FEW DIFFERENT THINGS

Peabody Award-winning National Public Radio stars Tom and Ray Magliozzi take the fear out of car repair and find the fun in engine failure each week in "Click and Clack Talk Cars." They took their nicknames from the clicketyclack sound made by aging autos.

Dear Tom and Ray:

My daughter lives in Anchorage, Alaska. She is a Wisconsin transplant who still believes her father (me) can help with anything. I need your help to maintain this myth. Here is the issue with her 2001 Subaru Forester: The engine starts right up in the cold (she parks it outside all winter). But when she goes back inside and leaves it running to warm it up, it turns itself off. Upon her return to the car, within a maximum of 10 minutes, she finds that the engine has turned itself off but the lights and radio are still on. She has a brand-new battery. Can you help me maintain my mythic status? -- John

TOM: Only if it wasn't you who advised her to move to Alaska in the first place, John. If you sent her out there, she may never listen to you again.

RAY: The car is starting fine, so there's nothing wrong with its cold-start operation. The problem occurs when the car is transitioning from cold-start to normal run conditions.

TOM: That suggests that a sensor is bad, and is telling the computer -- erroneously -- that the car is warmed up before it really is.

RAY: So here's your first mythic act, John: Ask her, "How long has the Check Engine light been on, sweetheart?"

TOM: When she says, "Oh my God, Daddy, you're psychic!" then you can say, "And how long has that no-good boyfriend been living in that apartment I'm paying for?"

RAY: If the Check Engine light is on, her next move would be to take it to a shop and have it scanned. A mechanic will hook a computer up to the car's diagnostic test port and read the stored error code.

TOM: If I had to take a wild guess -- which is all I do -- I'd guess it's going to be a bad coolant temperature sensor.

RAY: The coolant temp sensor, as its name implies, tells the computer whether the engine is warm or cold by measuring the temperature of the engine's coolant. If the coolant temp sensor is faulty and tells the computer that the car is all warmed up when it's really not, the computer might then reduce the amount of fuel going into the cylinders, which could cause a cold engine to stall.

TOM: Other possibilities include a bad oxygen sensor, which on an older car can cause the same problem as a bad coolant temp sensor. Or a vacuum leak, which is letting in too much air, which is the equivalent of "not enough fuel."

RAY: It should be something like that, John. Suggest those as places to start, and you might come off looking like a genius. And if none of that works, you might be able to buy a few more months of this mythic charade by angrily blaming it on us. We wish you luck, buddy.

Keep your car on the road and out of the repair shop by ordering Tom and Ray's pamphlet "Ten Ways You May Be Ruining Your Car Without Even Knowing It!" Send $4.75 (check or money order) to Ruin, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Like New Whirlpool Dishwasher

Really nice white Whirlpool dishwasher. It is like new (only used a couple of months) and works perfectly, we just upgraded. It has a top rack sprayer and the utensil holder slides onto the door so it makes it much easier to load larger items. It has multiple wash cycles to choose from as well as hi temp wash and heated drying. It also has a delay feature on it, in case you want it to start automatically later. $300. Please call 931-614-6837 or email me at Jerseystargirl02@yahoo.com. I can email pics upon request.

THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 2012 HAPPY BIRTHDAY! This year you open up to a different attitude at work and/or in your community. As a result, you feel more accepted and successful. Network to your heart's content, and socialize all you want. On both fronts — professional and emotional — you will expand your inner circle. Be precise with your communication. If you are single, you could meet someone who knocks your socks off. Take your time getting to know this person. If you are attached, choose to share more of your life with your sweetie. You will become a happier couple. CAPRICORN is a true friend.

A baby born today has a Sun in Pisces and a Moon in Capricorn if born after 3:24 a.m. (PST). Before that time, the Moon is in Sagittarius.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You know that appearance counts. Today, it counts even more than you think. You have a directness that lets others know you mean business. They step back accordingly. Consider cramming in more than one day's worth of plans, if possible. The Force is with you. Tonight: To the wee hours.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ You can only share some of your present flights of fancy with certain people. Others might be irritated that you are not more present in the moment. Confusion surrounds plans and creates a new possibility. Just keep confirming messages and ideas. Tonight: Try the unusual.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Work with a key person directly. This person asks more from you than many others do. Remain confident. Your energy mixed with his or her diligence creates quite the combination, and the end results will show it. Work through a disagreement. Tonight: Togetherness works.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Defer to others, knowing full well when enough is enough. Your sense of humor comes through when dealing with a difficult roommate or family member. Just don't let this person know you have the giggles. Focus on the long term. Tonight: Plan the weekend, and maybe start it early.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★ Your relaxed pace might need to be tweaked if you want to clear your to-do list. You sense a profound difference in what is going on right now with others. The unexpected makes your day more interesting. Greet sudden change with a smile. Tonight: Clear out as many errands as possible.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Your imagination encourages you down a new trail and/or adds a new dimension to a present project or emotional situation. A key person can be reactive. You might think you are used to this behavior by now, but you aren't. Resist verbalizing your opinions immediately. Tonight: Get into weekend mode a little early.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Your mind is on a parent or domestic matter. A significant other could be a tad bit reactive. Think in terms of gains. Perhaps you have been sitting on a feeling for too long. Choose a more appropriate time to express any pent-up emotions. Tonight: Homeward bound.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Confusion could be an issue with someone at a distance or within an academic environment. Your attempt to gain clarity might simply alert this person to the issue. A meeting remains pivotal. Tonight: Return calls. Start thinking "weekend."
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Be sensitive to your expenses and needs. Your creativity flows, and you can visualize a change. Staying grounded takes talent, but you can do it, especially if you keep an eye on your finances. You want to make good choices. Be willing to put in extra hours. Tonight: Your treat.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Despite momentary shocks and changes, you will head in the right direction, sure of yourself. You are able to integrate new information and situations immediately. Reach out for someone at a distance or an expert for more feedback. Tonight: Full steam ahead.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Listen to your inner voice. You might see that a course is carved out in front of you, yet your intuition tells you to go in another direction. Follow that voice. You will revise a judgment or two because of your observations. Count on your flexibility. Tonight: Head home.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ Follow through with a meeting. In this situation, you become clearer about which direction to go. You have the support of others. Know what it is you need to do, though you might not feel that you are quite ready. Tonight: Where people are.

TODAY - APRIL 7

Adsmore 1907 Spring and Easter – 11 a.m. – 4 p.m., Thursday-Saturday, Adsmore House and Gardens, 304 N. Jefferson St., Princeton. Katharine Garratt's sixth birthday will be featured through April 7. Although Katharine doesn't know it, she is receiving a special gift this year. This will make up for her aunts, Kate and Delina, being unable to attend because they are on the grand tour. Join us for this special event and learn what Katharine so desires for her birthday and how children celebrated at the turn of the 20th century. See the dining table set for the family's Easter dinner and the lovely linens and clothing on display. Usher in Spring with a visit to Adsmore. For more information, call 270-365-3114 or email adsmore@vci.net.

TODAY-SATURDAY

"The Winter's Tale" – 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, 2 p.m. Saturday, Roxy Regional Theater, 100 Franklin St., Clarksville, Tenn. In this tale edited by Brandon Meeks, the jealous King Leontes of Sicilia nearly topples his own kingdom when he falsely accuses his queen of adultery with his childhood friend, King Polixenes of Bohemia. In his foolishness and rage, he loses his wife, his son and his baby daughter. The cycle of life and the power of true love are alive upon the Roxy stage, as a family is reunited, both physically and spiritually, through the power of forgiveness. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for ages 13 and under and may be purchased online at www.roxyregionaltheatre.org, by phone at 931-645-7699, or at the theatre during regular box office hours. The performance on Friday is our regular pay-what-you-can preview; all tickets not pre-sold at the regular ticket price will go on sale at 7:30 p.m. for whatever price you wish to pay.

Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" – 7 p.m. Thursday-Sunday, 2 p.m. Sunday. SKIT performs "Our Town," perhaps Thornton Wilder's most well-known and beloved play. Tickets are available by visiting Janice Mason Art Museum, calling 270-522-9056 or at the door. Tickets are $5. The serious nature of this play might make it of interest to children under 12 years old.

TODAY-MARCH 23

MARCH 21-24

Gross Indecency: The Three Trials of Oscar Wilde – 7 p.m., Wednesday and Thursday, 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday, Roxy Regional Theatre, 100 Franklin St., Clarksville, Tenn. In three short months, Oscar Wilde, the most celebrated playwright and wit of Victorian England, was toppled from the apex of British society into humiliation and ruin. Telling the gripping story of Wilde's tragic fall through actual trial documents, newspaper accounts and writings of the day, playwright Moisés Kaufman ignites an incendiary mix of sex and censorship, ultimately placing on trial a society that made the poet and playwright a scapegoat for its own sexual and moral insecurities and hypocrisies. This production contains language and subject matter not appropriate for all audiences. All tickets are $10 and may be purchased online at www.roxyregionaltheatre.org, by phone at 931-645-7699, or at the theatre during regular box office hours from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Monday-Friday.
